West Kentucky Elated As Barkley Victory Announced

The entire state of Kentucky was rejoicing today as it became certain Senator Alben W. Barkley had been elected vice-president of the United States. Particularly elated, however, were the residents of the Purchase area.

This is the first time in history that so great an honor has come to West Kentucky.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, who appears on the verge of becoming the next vice-president of the United States, rose at his usual early hour today and scurried to one of his farms, miles from a telephone.

The Senator's son David Barkley, says his famous father will be back at his Paducah home sometime later today. But right now the "man of iron" in Kentucky politics wants to escape some of the congratulatory phone calls from friends and reporters.

The younger Barkley says the Senator, who will be 71 this month, was up "off and on" during the night to hear the latest election returns.

So far he hasn't issued any statements.

FRENCH MINES CLEARED OF RED STRIKERS

PARIS, Nov. 3 (UP) — The French government announces that the nation's coal mines have been cleared of communist strikers and that one-third of the miners are back at work.

With the back-to-work movement gaining steadily, the cabinet met to discuss measures to end the crippling coal strike now five weeks old.

Interior minister Jules Moch says more than 44,000 miners worked yesterday, and the number probably will be higher today.

He called on the French people to back up the government by electing councilors of the republic next Sunday who are "resolutely determined to support the government in the task of freeing the country from totalitarianism."

NATION'S CAPITAL REMAINS QUIET BUT SURPRISED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (UP) — Folks in the nation's capital, just like everywhere else, are surprised at the election returns. Of course they couldn't vote but for days they've been reverently reading the political pollsters and the forecasters. Washington is overrun with them.

But those prognosticators are in hiding today. Or else they're settling down for a nice-fancy meal of crow.

For example, take the press club lounge last night. The experts in Washington wrote their stories in advance, most of them telling Dewey how he should run the mansion at 16-Hundred Pennsylvania Avenue. And then they retired to the press club lounge on the 13th floor of the National Press building to listen to the returns over the radio. Along about midnight, the experts began to look worried and one by one they slid out of the lounge and made a bee-line for their offices. They had some re-writing to do.

Of course, that wasn't the case over at the white house. There a brawny guard turned down his radio and said with a smile "the old man kinda fooled everybody, eh?"

In his box at the east gate, the guard had been listening to the returns throughout the night. "I could have told you those polls were off the beam," the guard said to a reporter. "The boss is a real bawler," he explained.

Over at the Statler hotel, where Republicans gathered, the smiles were missing. The fun-making atmosphere became funeral started early in the evening. But around midnight, there was only one person in the vast Republican headquarters who was smiling. That was Margaret Chase Smith. She was elected senator from Maine in September.

Calloway Polls Second Largest Presidential Vote In History

Bourbon County Count Stymied

PARIS, Nov. 3 (UP) — Tabulation of Bourbon county votes still is at a standstill.

The vote count was postponed last night when 56 forged ballots were found stuffed in the first two ballot boxes opened. The tabulation was scheduled to resume something today with 29 precincts yet to be counted.

The 56 forged ballots were found in the 563 votes cast in Paris precincts one and two. Paris, the county seat, is the home of Virgil Chapman, the Democratic nominee for U. S. Senator.

Calloway county polled its second-largest presidential vote in the history of the county yesterday with a total of 5,741 ballots cast, according to election officials. The only larger vote was in 1932 when approximately 7,000 ballots were polled for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

DEMOCRATS GAIN CONTROL OF BOTH SENATE AND HOUSE

The Democrats have regained control of the congress they lost to the Republicans two years ago. The Democrats followed up their earlier victory in the lower chamber by capturing the Senate shortly before noon. They took over when 37-year-old Hubert Humphrey defeated his incumbent Republican rival, Senator Joe Ball in the Minnesota Senatorial race.

That triumph brought the Democratic senate gain in yesterday's election to 10. Together with the 30 seats they are holding over from the last congress they now have a total of 49, or a one vote majority in the 96 member upper chamber. And the Democrats have a good chance of stretching that lead. They are running ahead of Republican entries in five still undecided races for the senate.

In the house, the Democrats have already gained 234 seats, or 16 more than a majority. And here, too, they are likely to pad their lead. Of the 65 races still unsettled for congressional seats, the Democrats are running ahead in 26. The Republicans have elected 133 representatives and they are now leading in 39 other districts.

Chapman declared in his campaign that his amendment to the OPA Law in 1942 returned Kentucky burley growers some additional $220,000,000. He led the fight which brought them compensation for their work when the Supreme Court first ruled the AAA unconstitutional.

He busied himself looking after the interests of his constituents and built a strong organization in the sixth district where most federal employees owe their appointments to him.

Chapman won against the opposition of the state's largest newspapers. The Louisville Courier Journal and Times supported the Truman-Barkley ticket but urged Chapman's defeat. The Kentucky editions of the Cincinnati papers supported Cooper.

Chapman scoffed at the polls and was bitter in his criticism of newspaper opposition. He declared "the capitalistic, monopolistic press" was unfair to him because it supported Cooper.

He is a native of Simpson county and a graduate of the University of Kentucky. He describes himself as a "good, walking advertisement for homecooking and dairy products."

He weighs 300 pounds. Chapman married Miss Mary Adams Talbot in 1920. They have one daughter, Mrs. Francis J. Danforth. He is a member of the Disciples of Christ (Christian) church and a Mason.

little comment. However, he did say, "Of course, we felt all along that Truman and Barkley would win, but we didn't expect such a complete Democratic victory."

Liberal business men were all smiles today when the announcement was heard that Dewey had conceded. Many merchants in this area had been preparing for hard times in the event the Republicans gained control of the government. Now they felt certain that prosperity would continue for another four years.

In the county voting yesterday only one precinct went Republican. In North Brinkley 40 votes were cast for Dewey and 37 for Truman. Cooper also carried this precinct with 44 votes to Chapman's 33.

Most of Nation Rejoices With Truman as Victor in 'Great Fight'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — J. Vivian Truman, brother of the president and the first to congratulate him, says that his brother "put up a great fight."

"I'm very happy for him. We felt all along that he would win and when the victory came it was such a joyous occasion that we just couldn't put it into words."

"I'm very proud indeed to be the brother of President Harry S. Truman. We are all deeply proud of the great honor the American citizens bestowed on him."

GRANDVIEW, Mo. — Miss Mary Jane Truman, sister of the President, received a quick call from her famous brother immediately after he received the word of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's concession. She told the United Press:

"I can't say anything special, only that I'm delighted."

Obviously elated by the news, Miss Truman said that she called her brother early this morning and that he telephoned her a few minutes after he received his great news, adding:

"Our conversation was a personal matter."

New York — The Socialist party presidential candidate, Norman Thomas, congratulated President Truman today on his election.

"Dear Mr. President, please accept my congratulations to you on the victory for which you fought so hard. I am glad that you carried both the senate and the house so that the responsibility will not be divided. In these very crucial times, for the sake of our country, I wish your administration the best sort of success."

Baltimore — Because he took time out from his job to vote, James Algie was alive to tell about it today.

A few minutes before he returned to the Baltimore laundry where he is a fireman, a four-ton boiler exploded. It blew out the side of the boiler room, damaged two nearby houses and injured four persons.

MIAMI — Rolf Kaltenborn son of radio-commentator H. V. Kaltenborn, has lost his bid for a seat in the house of representatives from Florida.

Kaltenborn ran on the Republican ticket in Florida's sixth district. He lost to Democrat Dwight L. Rogers, veteran incumbent who polled 12,000 and 576 votes to Kaltenborn's 7,000 and 683 according to near-complete returns.

WASHINGTON — Jack Kroll, Director of the CIO political action committee, says the election demonstrates that the people are united "as he put it" in defense of the cherished principles of the new deal.

In a statement, Kroll says: "They have rejected the reactionary forces of big business in the Republican party and its allies in the Dixiecrat and so-called Progressive camps. And they have cleansed their house of the reactionaries who slipped by in 1946."

He says his committee, which supported most Democratic congres-

Well, it's all over now. Governor Dewey has conceded the presidential election to Mr. Harry Truman.

Dewey ended the tension in the biggest upset in 32 years of American politics by throwing in to Mr. Truman at a quarter after eleven this morning (EST).

The man from Missouri dumfounded the forecasters by taking an early lead in nationwide popular returns and holding it all the way through — building it up hour after hour.

It was the dark horse from Independence all the way in electoral votes, too. And his Democratic party further stumped the experts by overthrowing the Republican majorities in both House and Senate — as well as winning a half dozen state governorships from the GOP.

After conceding the election, Governor Dewey sent the following message to the victorious Mr. Truman:

"I urge all Americans to unite behind you in support of every effort to keep our nation strong and free and establish peace in the world."

Dewey issued his statement after awaking from a brief nap in his New York hotel room. He had left word not to be disturbed until there was news important enough to get him up.

That news came when Ohio, the scene of the closest fight, began to show signs of giving Mr. Truman its decisive 25 electoral votes.

Dewey's press aid, James Hagerly, says Dewey phoned his running mate, California's Governor Warren, before sending the message to Mr. Truman.

Hagerly has this to say of the concession: "We were waiting for Ohio and Illinois to break before making our decision. When the results were conclusive, the Governor made his decision."

Hagerly says Dewey has no plans as yet for leaving New York City where he had been sweating out the returns.

Until shortly after midnight, Dewey's headquarters in New York was a scene of cheering crowds and celebration. Then, as the Democratic sweep began, a grim silence fell over the place. The band quit playing. Hundreds of hangers-on went home. And only a handful of loyal followers settled down to see the bitter end.

President Truman received the news of Dewey's concession with a broad smile. And humbly, he thanked the well-wishers who jammed into his Kansas City, Missouri, hotel suite to congratulate him on his astounding success.

At the last count before Dewey gave up, Mr. Truman was way out front in 28 states having 304 electoral votes, 38 more than he needed to remain on his job.

At the same time, Dewey was leading in 16 states for 189 electoral ballots, 77 fewer than he needed before he could move into his dreamhouse on Pennsylvania Avenue.

At the time of the concession, Mr. Truman was ahead by more than one-million-139-thousand popular votes over Dewey. The count 19-million-404 thousand for Truman, 18-million-264-thousand for Dewey.

Mr. Truman will go down in history as the David among Democratic presidents.

For he defeated the Goliath of G. O. P. challengers, the man who was expected to win about the easiest victory in G. O. P. history.

And to make the feat more remarkable, Mr. Truman won in the face of a double split in his own party, a left-wing split that cost him New York's 47 electoral votes, and a right wing revolt in the south that cost him 40 electoral votes.

And Mr. Truman won almost by himself. He was deserted by many stalwart backers of the new deal, men like former governor Charles Edison of New Jersey. E. H. Crump, Democratic boss of Tennessee, and ex-new deal officials like former ambassador William C. Bullitt.

Ever since he took the oath of office on the day Franklin Roosevelt died in 1945, Mr. Truman had, in one sense, been a dual figure. His personality tended to separate itself from his policies. People liked Harry Truman everywhere in the country, even those who upbraided his policies as blunders.

But this liking was not expected to save him from overwhelming defeat at the polls, a defeat that seemed to be the logical and inevitable series of long series of other defeats. These include the election of the Republican congress in 1946, his defeat in his long fight to save price-control, his battle against the Taft-Hartley labor law, his unsuccessful struggle for a drastic civil rights program, and many others, including the Republican tax bills.

Mr. Truman believed he had a good chance for election. And he practically won the race by himself. The Democratic party's organization was undermined and weak financially compared to the strength it boasted in Mr. Roosevelt's day.

But Mr. Truman out-campaigned Governor Dewey by a considerable margin. That is now clearly apparent, although a large assemblage of political experts failed to understand what was happening at the time.

Mr. Dewey deliberately chose a soft campaign. Mr. Truman decided on a tough campaign. He debated the issues, challenged Dewey loudly and did not hesitate to use hard words and call hard names. Mr. Dewey contented himself with statements of general principles.

Documentary evidence of dependency should be submitted to Veterans Administration immediately by veterans with ratings of 60 per cent or more in order that they may qualify for increased compensation payments.

Public Law 877 of the 80th Congress provides additional allowances for such disabled veterans who have a wife, children or dependent parents. The married veteran may receive up to $21 extra, with added amounts for additional dependents.

Veterans whose dependents are recorded in their VA claims folders as of September 1, 1948, will have until December 1 to file the evidence. These awards will be retroactive to September 1, the effective date of the law. Otherwise, the effective date of the increases will be the date of receipt of the evidence.

As evidence of a wife and children, a veteran may submit certified copies of public or church records. If for any reason these are not available, he should submit the best evidence at hand, such as sworn statements of responsible persons. For parents, proof of dependency in the form of sworn statements as to income and property ownership are required.

The first G. I. Bill deadline is not far away. Veterans Administration said today.

Veterans discharged before July 25, 1947, have only until July 25, 1948, to apply for readjustment allowances for unemployment and self-employment.

G. I.'s discharged after the 1947 date have until two years after discharge.

Q. I enlisted in the Army during July, 1947. Am I entitled to loan benefits under the G. I. Bill?

A. If you served at any time between September 16, 1940 and July 25, 1947, and you were discharged under conditions other than dishonorable after at least 90 days of active service, or for a service-incurred disability in less than 90 days, you may qualify for a G. I. loan.

Q. My son was disabled during World War II. Will VA pay him an additional sum for dependents?

A. If your son is rated 60 per cent or more disabled he is entitled to an additional sum for his dependents.

What To Do For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse, bubbled-over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked to eat—didn't know what digestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances the "old stomach" and the ever-changing blood need help. Now you may again release vibrant energy to every muscle, fiber, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS-Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic keeps the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and grip of that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh, fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Tracy Hayden was not born a Garrison, but she lived at the Hacienda, built by old Jeff Garrison. Tracy is the favorite of her mother, Mrs. Hayden, and thus wins the enmity of Ruth and Juan, grandchildren, and weak Ramon, only surviving son. The Senora learns of another grandson she never has seen, Phil Garrison, and sends Tracy to look him up. He is a ransacker of a room in a city lodging house, and is interrupted by Tracy, who has been directed to Garrison's room. Drawing his gun, Conroy admits he. Tracy assumes he is the Senora's grandson. Later Conroy returns to Garrison's room, finding his quarry fled. Called home by the Senora's illness, Tracy persuades Conroy to accompany her. Still posing as Phil, he meets the trail Senora, who exacts his promise to stay one month. Beautiful she plays up to her new "cousin." Conroy's masquerade is threatened when Helene, Ramon's young second wife, announces she has met Phil Garrison. Urgent news that a man has gone berserk in the panic-stricken Mexican village finds Ramon too weak to take action. Helene baits Conroy, who accepts the challenge. After he leaves to settle the trouble, Helene tells Tracy that he is not Phil.

CHAPTER XIII

EVERY window was shut. barred in the small adobe huts that made up the Mexican village. Pete Saba braked the station wagon, gave Jim Conroy a look that offered friendship and drawled, "Looks peaceful enough."

Jim said, "Well see." He was glad Pete had come instead of Ramon Garrison. Old Pete would be a help in a pinch, Ramon none at all.

Both men peered into the darkness of the village for the troublemaker, Jose. They saw no one. The quiet was oppressive, not peaceful. Jim had an annoying sense of being watched from the darkness as they walked across to a little square, came finally to a hut where Pete knocked firmly.

Inside the hut, a woman's voice called out in Spanish, pouring forth more agitated words as Pete said, "Open up, Luisa. We've come for Jose."

"She says he's not home, and that she won't open the door until Jose behaves himself. She's scared of him, too," Pete translated.

Turning away from Jose's house, they walked slowly along the deserted village street. An occasional shutter opened for dark eyes to peer out. They had walked half around the village when a voice came from the shadows.

"You look for me, Senora?" Jose's English wasn't bad at all, but his voice was thick with drink. He lurched a little on his feet, coming forward, and there was a sideways look to his bulky shoulders. He had a long-barreled Colt in his right hand. He kept coming toward Jim Conroy, and Jim kept moving to meet him. They halted with no more than five paces between them. Jose glared ferociously.

"You come to look me up, eh?" the Mexican demanded.

Jim said, "No, not that. Jose?" He didn't quite know how to handle the man. The gun Jose held filled him with a heavy sense of dread. He remembered once when he bailed out of his riddled fighter plane, when he had chuted down with the Jap plane, trying to machine-gun him as he hung in the shrouds. He had known the same sort of dread then. But he had come through that all right. He took another step forward.

"We just came to talk, Jose," he said. "You know that all wrong, knifing a man, and scaring everybody in the village. A man like you—"

"What you mean, a man like me?"

New Instructor Named in College Art Department

Miss Miriam Holloway of Indian River, Mich., is the new art instructor at Murray State college. She replaces Mrs. Mary Ed Hall who is on leave of absence due to illness.

Miss Holloway received her B. S. degree from Michigan State Normal college in 1939 and her master's degree from the University of Michigan in 1948. At the university she studied under Carlos Lopez.

The new instructor also studied three years as an undergraduate at the Cincinnati Art Academy and the University of Cincinnati.

During her teaching career, Miss Holloway served as a high school art supervisor at Oxford and Ludington, Mich., and as an elementary supervisor at Midland, Mich. She also has had experience in an architect's office at West Palm Beach.

In 1943, Miss Holloway joined the WAC where she served as a topographical draftsman in London, Paris, and Versailles.

"That was a wonderful experience for me," she says. "It was equivalent to two years of study abroad."

Miss Holloway has exhibited her work in Cincinnati, Ann Arbor, and Palm Beach. Most of her work is done in oil and water color.

Mrs. Wendell Wilkie has been quoted as follows: "One fact is dear to all of us who think—war does not settle disagreements. Although the United Nations may not have accomplished all we hoped for, it is the only place where men of all nations are attempting to find solutions for world problems. And if all of us will try to understand what the United Nations is doing, have patience instead of cynicism, the world organization can sooner be the effective instrument to help formulate the peace."

UN Cure for Bigotry

George S. Kaufman

George S. Kaufman, noted dramatist and director, says everyone has a part in the United Nations. "Unless the United Nations succeeds, we're going to find ourselves in a state of chaos. Man needs to jolt himself into understanding this before he gets further jolted by the consequences of war, ignorance, prejudice and bigotry. The UN is trying to do a job to conquer these traditional enemies of humanity but it can't succeed unless the public knows and understands what the UN is all about. It is our responsibility—the responsibility of you and me—to know and understand."

HOOPSTERS FIGHT TO MAKE VARSITY

Hot competition for starting berths has been the feature of the Bred basketball practice sessions in the last two weeks. The hoopsters play their first game on December 3 against Kentucky Wesleyan.

At the guard positions, Harold Dougherty, Don Stephenson, Charles McKee, and Rex Alexander, all lettermen, have been leading the contenders. Freshmen Benny Perce, Mt. Vernon, Ill., Jake Holman, Jonesboro, Ark., and Charles Lamprey, Sharpe, are pressing the lettermen for starting posts.

Competition at the pivot centers around lettermen "Muck" Williams, and "Frank" Wendryhoski. Lanky freshmen Melvin DeWeese Paducah, and David Davis Pinkneyville, Ill., have shown promise at the position.

Competition has reached its peak at the forward positions with holdovers Zedie Herrold, Charles Snow, Cliff Cavender and Jimmy Frank bidding for starting roles. Percy Clippard of Pinkneyville, Ill., and Ellis Austin, Kankakee, Ill., fresh, are in the thick of the fight for the positions.

Coach Harlan Hodges has been shifting the boys from position to position trying to find the most effective combination.

The team has a 23 game schedule that carries them into the middle of February. The slate includes ten games in the Ohio Valley conference and the remainder with colleges of the section.

Any Way You Make it, Leaf Mould is Garden Bonus

Wherever gardeners meet, talk about "organic gardening" is likely to be heard, and loudly. But do not let this clamor, which is often accompanied by arguments about various pet formulae for making compost, frighten you out of saving your leaves this fall.

All you need to do to make leaves turn into humus, is let them alone. For the sake of neatness, it is well to rake them up, and pile them in a corner where they will not be unsightly. But nature will do the rest in due time. Two years from now you will have a precious store of leaf mould without any further trouble. And once the annual practice is established, then every year a crop of humus, thoroughly decayed, is available for spreading on your garden.

Methods of management, which may seem elaborate, are justified on two points, first they can speed up the rate of decay, so that compost is available in one year instead of two; and second, where room is at a premium, they confine the compost pile in reduced space, and improve its appearance.

To speed decay, the growth of the bacteria which cause decay is stimulated. There are two methods of doing this. These bacteria are present in decaying manure, so that when a small quantity of manure is spread through the compost pile, their number is increased and their activity hastened. If manure is lacking, or there is objection to using it, commercial cultures of these bacteria are now available, and can be used instead. Nitrogen can be supplied by mixing chemical fertilizer with the compost material.

Any organic matter can be used in a compost heap; and this means table refuse from the house. But it is not practical to use it except in a managed pile, where it can be covered with earth to kill odor. The simplest way of creating a managed compost pile is to set aside a suitable location, out of the way, and preferably screened by planting, or a fence; 10 x 10 feet would be an average size. Clean off all vegetation, and harden the surface by rolling. Pile evenly over this area all dead leaves and other waste plant and even animal material, from your garden, and from kitchen wastes. But carefully exclude, if you would avoid trouble, all wood, branches, twigs and metal objects. When the layer, well tramped down, is six inches thick, sprinkle it with a balanced fertilizer mixture, about one ounce to a square yard. Wood shavings and shingles are also beneficial, each in three or more times this quantity. Then wet it down.

Build up the heap, layer by layer, with similar applications between the layers; and keep it moist. If bad odors develop an inch of soil thrown on top of the pile will prevent them. When the pile is as high as you can conveniently manage, cover the top with soil and let it stand until you are ready to dig the humus into the garden. Start a new one to take care of current accumulations.

will be fed by wires and radio links to members of naval reserve squadrons in television classrooms at Naval air station, Squantum, Massachusetts; Willow Grove, Pa.; Floyd Field, near New York City; and Anacostia, near Washington, D. C.

Test programs for trainees in the television classroom at Sands Point station here will include combinations of lectures, demonstration, round-table, and dramatization techniques.

The Navy disclosed that classroom instructors are to be tested in action before the television cameras, and that those who meet the requirements for appearance, voice and projection of teaching material will be selected as studio instructors to teach trainees in television classrooms.

A spokesman said that "sense of personal relationship between student and teacher, one of the most desirable factors in the teaching process, is believed probable in teaching by television." It was added that the Navy experiment will include every practical test to build such relationship to the maximum.

Recently, the action aboard an aircraft carrier was telecast over an east coast network. At the time, Navy officials said they saw "enormous possibilities" of using television in naval instruction.

In case of another war the civilian population may also be able to "see" battles at sea and perhaps aerial warfare, the telecast showed.

New Concord High School News

The high school classes of New Concord met Wednesday afternoon, October 21, to organize a Pep Club. The following officers were elected: Rose Mary Lax - president, Eula Mae Rose - vice president, Dortha Ann Hendon - secretary, and Wanda Faye Grogan - treasurer. There is a large membership and all are expected to back the players and cheerleaders.

Second grade students are working on a health unit, which is the care of teeth, clean finger nails, and keeping their shoes shined for a month. A record is kept of each child and a star is given each day they meet the requirements. Free samples of tooth paste have been given to each child. The second grade lost one student, Kenneth Todd, and gained one new student, Betty Lou Eldridge, from Pottertown. New coat racks and book shelves are being added to the rooms and we want to thank Mr. Lassiter for them. Mrs. McCage and her second grade students are buying new readers with the book grade rooms and we want to thank fee money.

Mrs. Hilda Hart and her fourth grade students have been studying about cotton. In the course of their study they have made books on cotton. These books will enable them to learn more about cotton and its uses. These boys and girls have made dolls from corn cobs and dressed them in colonial costumes.

The fifth grade has been making ships like the ones Columbus used to discover the new world. These ships, Santa Maria, Pinta, and Nina, are very realistic looking over a blue background representing the ocean. They received two white rats to aid in their experiments. Last week they saw a very interesting movie based on white rats. The American speech class conducted a panel discussion Thursday morning, October 23, over station W. N. B. S. Their subject was "The American Way" vs. "The Soviet Way." The material for this program was gathered from the Current Events paper which is being studied in the American history class. Those taking part in the panel were: Ted McCuiston, Harold Lassiter, C. A. Bucy, Charles Outland, Bobby Spiceland, Jackie Winesetter, and Douglas Forrest.

Mrs. Grogan's seventh and eighth grade history class has completed a study of the causes of the Revolutionary War. They also wrote papers in which they pretended to be either a colonist or an Englishman. They explained why or why not they thought Parliament should tax the colonies. The class voted Golda Edwards' and Carolyn Osborn's papers the best.

The American history class is engaged in a study of the coming election. Upon learning that an election contest is to be conducted among the high schools and that the first prize is $100.00, they each wrote a letter to the voters telling them the importance of coming to vote on November 2. Alice Fielder's letter received the majority of their votes. It was mimeographed and sent to the voters of the New Concord district.

Free hand drawing of the Roman Empire has been done by the World history class. Upon completion of the maps, the best ones will be selected and placed on the bulletin boards.

A large crowd attended the Halloween Carnival Friday evening, October 23, sponsored by the Mother's Club. Prizes for the best costumed couple went to Alice Burken and Eula Mae Rose; and to the individual, Richard Arnold. Everyone enjoyed fishing, eating, cake walking, fortune telling, and bobbing for apples.

The Redbirds opened their season Tuesday night, October 26,

Looks for New Era

Walter White

Walter White, Secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, recently issued this statement in behalf of the United Nations: "The atomic age is much more than the bomb. It must be the era of a new peace and a new fight, in which the rights and freedoms of all peoples of every race, creed, color and place of residence must not only be recognized but championed. To champion these rights and to win this peace call for a strong UN. I'm for it."
